QUADRILLE HAS TRIP TO FAIR

El Dorado County Group Gains Much Advertising For Community In Weekend

Members of the Pioneer Quadrille Club and a delegation totalling about forty county residents gave the world's fair "something to talk about" by their participation Saturday on the "boat race excursion" to the exposition at Treasure Island.

The boat race pitted the Delta Queen, sailing from Sacramento, against the Delta King, sailing from Stockton, and the two raced as a pair against the boat Golden Eagle, sailing on the Mississippi, between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, Mo. The King beat the Queen and both lost to the Golden Eagle, according to officials.

The El Dorado County delegation sailed from Sacramento Saturday morning on the Delta Queen and, according to Wallace M. Ripley, chamber of commerce secretary, who made the trip, was "the life of the party."

There were several exhibition dances given by the Pioneer Quadrille Club during the trip to Treasure Island and, in addition, they provided music for dancing by other groups.

There were various contests on the boat enroute to Treasure Island and Mrs. Amy Drysdale, of Georgetown, was awarded a ten-dollar prize for the best ladies' costume and the Pioneer Quadrille Club won first award for being the best group in costume.

Docking at Treasure Island about six o'clock Saturday evening, the Sacramento-Tahoe is one of nine buildings in the counties group established by the California Commission for the Golden Gate International Exposition on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay.

EUROPEAN STATESMEN SAY ODDS AGAINST PEACE

Summary Of "Off The Record" Opinions By Leaders In Old World Capitals Shows Present Situation Extremely Tense

EDITOR'S NOTE: Around the world went a message from the New York headquarters of the United Press asking its correspondents in major capitals for the latest authoritative opinion on the chances for war or peace in Europe. Their replies were based on off-the-record talks with government leaders and foreign policy makers in every world power at the beginning of what may be a fateful week in Europe's history.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

United Press Foreign News Editor

(Copyright 1939 By United Press)

Europe's worried capitals believed that the underlying factors tending toward war are greater today than during the Czechoslovak crisis and that Adolf Hitler's speech on Friday may mark a turning point—possibly toward peace.

As of today, in the opinion of statesmen, foreign office experts, ambassadors and financiers canvassed over the weekend by representatives of the United Press, the odds are definitely, although by no means hopelessly against peace.

Almost all agreed that Europe's troubles are rapidly settling down to a realistic clash between economic interests of the big powers.

The turn toward war or peace, they believe, now depends largely on success of the anti-aggression front being established by Great Britain and France as a powerful safeguard against future explosions in Europe. Progress toward that objective has involved a risk of conflict but success would be regarded as a strong factor for peace.

The final outcome depends, too, on the risks that Hitler or Mussolini choose to take and the next move is Hitler's.

Marchini Star Of Day In Game Played Friday On Amador County Lot

The Cougars won the second game of the second half of the high school baseball league schedule at Ione Friday, trimming the high school aggregation over there by a 2 to 0 count.

Individual star of the day for the Cougars was Marchini, right fielder, whose hit in the first inning drove in the two Cougar tallies and that's the way the score stayed throughout the game.

In the last of the seventh, the final inning, Marchini had to act in a major role again to save the day for the Cougars and did so by scooping up an outfield ground ball to make a throw to the plate which

The El Dorado County Merchants chalked up a 9 to 5 win against Jackson Sunday at Marcus P. Bennett, Jr., Memorial Park, with Reginald Jackson on the mound again.

Jackson, who had been at Woodland the previous two weeks, will be the Merchants main hurler this season.

The early-morning shower resulted in some confusion in the minds of some of the Merchant players and not all of them appeared for the game as it was thought likely the contest might be postponed.

However, with those who did show up, and the substitutes, plus the pitching strength of the star left-hander, the Merchants were well able to take charge of things early in the game. Begovich did the catching for the Merchants.

"REVERSE ENGLISH!"

THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

We must not let April pass without some mention of Shakespeare and, as we are not a Shakespeare scholar, may we give in part a talk we heard by Brother Leo, one of the few outstanding Shakespearean scholars in the West? Brother Leo talked about the historical plays which have in them that basic wisdom that the world cannot afford to lose. What is basic wisdom? In these plays, it is fresh vision, profound insight and depth of understanding, all precious qualities destined for the healing nations.

The three plays about Henry VI are only for the specialist as they were written during Shakespeare's imitative period. Of Henry VIII he wrote only a portion. The two "Richards" show Shakespeare at the beginning of his power although he was still under the influence of Marlowe. Brother Leo believes that Shakespeare put something of himself in the character of Richard II. At first the reader is antagonized by Richard but he ends with an unflinching sympathy for him. Like Edward VIII in our time, Richard II abdicated. There have not been many overt manifestations of royal power in England. Henry VIII stands out as one of the kings who refused to be bullied. Certainly, he would not have abdicated had the nobles come to him with the suggestion, can't you see him in his bluff way, asking in the equivalent of his day "Says who?"

In "King John" Shakespeare found himself. A play must have a predominant theme and the theme of John is the eternal conflict between the crown and the nobles. If the King were strong, he would override the nobles and if he were weak the nobles would override him. You see the principle all through English history. The John of history re-lives his life in this play. John was a weak man who, like so many weak men, asserted himself boldly, talked big and then gave in.

In the three "Henry IV" plays Shakespeare shows the fullness of his power as a dramatic historian. Henry IV took unscrupulous means to get to the top and, true to life, the thing desired wrongly was its own punishment. This is one of the fundamental truths in life pointed out as far back as the Old Testament and the Greek dramatists but it is a lesson that this old world is slow to learn. It is Henry, you remember, who ends a famous soliloquy in which Shakespeare left the high water mark of his poetry, with the world: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

Henry V is Shakespeare's heroic hero. Strangely enough, Shakespeare has many heroines in his play but no heroes, except Henry V. Perhaps (all the women liked this little aside of Brother Leo's) it is because women are more capable of "heroicity" than men. Henry V was a madcap Prince of Wales a daredevil who spent his time with that old roysterer Sir John Falstaff, but once on the throne he became a model king. In one of the best passages in the play Henry speaks to a soldier on the battlefield who does not recognize him saying: "Though I speak it to you, I think the King is not a man as I am; the violet smells to him as it does to me, all his senses have but human conditions." Henry was a good politician—In order to quell internal disturbances he began a war with France. This by the way, is almost a formula in every age, to take the minds of the populace off of their injustices, the leaders begin a war with the nation that is handiest.

These six plays of Shakespeare's are a pageant in human history that can be applied to the present. Give yourself six weeks and read a play each week, Brother Leo advised. Get to know the people in the plays and you will come away strengthened, balanced and enriched.

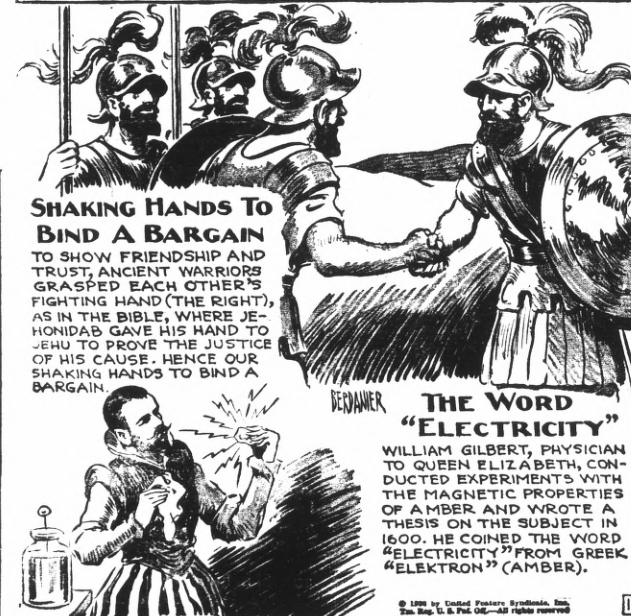

We heard Clifton Fadiman repeat the oldest literary joke over the radio, the other evening. Remember it?

"Milton wrote 'Paradise Lost'." His wife died.

"He wrote 'Paradise Regained'."

EGGS STOLEN; FINE $100
LONDON, (UP)—Reminders of severity of English 18th and 19th century justice were produced when a 70-year-old egg dealer, Wilson Bush, was found guilty of stealing eight eggs worth 19 cents from other egg sellers in Dorchester, South England. He was fined $100 with $15 costs.

Labor Bills Keep Rural Assemblymen On Alert

Recent Los Angeles Proposal Amended So Thoroughly That Author Failed To Recognize Measure In Final Vote; Assembly Work Told

By A. G. "SCOOP" THURMAN

Member of the Assembly, Sixth District

SACRAMENTO—Your assemblyman lost and won in the legislation debated on the floor of the assembly last week affecting our Sixth Assembly District. So we know how it feels to lose legislative battles as well as win them. However the legislative fight we lost may only be a temporary defeat inasmuch as we were able to have the matter held up in the assembly upon a motion to reconsider.

The bill lost was A. B. 814, which would allow peremptory challenge of a trial judge.

The bill would add to other grounds for disqualification of a judge the belief of a member of either side in a court action that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial before that jurist. It would give the judge five days in which to answer the challenge.

It would also hinder the routine court proceedings in rural areas where the number of judges available is small.

Upholding our contention, the San Francisco Chronicle last Saturday editorially commented as follows:

"Approving the bill to permit an attorney one challenge of a trial judge, the assembly has passed to the senate the duty of killing a measure whose sole effect would be to impede procedure and obstruct justice. If an attorney objects to trying a case before a certain judge, he can state his reason. If the reason is valid, no judge is going to invite criticism by insisting upon a trial in which his prejudice or integrity is challenged. If we are going to have reputable courts we must give judges some authority and prestige. They cannot be put at the mercy of a lawyer using the privilege of peremptory challenges without stating a cause."

With thirty attorneys in the lower house, some of whom oppose certain judges in their districts, anyone who opposes such a bill has two strikes on them when they

Attention City Residents

The owners or tenants of city residences who have weeds or other refuse to burn as a result of the Spring cleaning of their properties are requested to attend to the burning immediately.

Owing to the lack of rainfall during the past winter, we can anticipate a dry season longer than usual this year, with consequent increased fire hazards.

If residents will attend to their outdoor burning immediately, it will be to their convenience and will assist materially in reducing the grass or rubbish fire hazard in the community during the summer season.

City regulations against outdoor burning will be put into effect within the next few weeks.

Central Press Columnist

Generally speaking, senators and representatives like to be members of important committees. It makes them influential in shaping legislation. They're able to get things for their home folks, which naturally helps them on election days. There also is publicity in it for them. It gives them an appearance of prominence, which likewise is a political asset; their constituents are proud of them. Take Senator William E. Borah, for example. He's a member of the upper congressional chamber's Foreign Relations Committee. That's a key group just now on account of the disturbed state of international affairs. The Idaho solon used to be chairman. He isn't today, because he calls himself a Republican (really he's an independent), the Republicans are in a minority and all the chairmen are majority-lies. But, anyway, Borah established his reputation as foreign relations chairman. I don't say he wouldn't have established it on his individual merits even without his chairmanship, but that certainly was very useful to him. Senator Key Pittman is chairman now, so that makes him extra-consequential—maybe more so than he's personally entitled to be.

Oh, a good committee membership is valuable, but a first class chairmanship? That's the acme. Some Not Important Paraphrasing: Some committees are not worth much. Illustratively, who ever heard of the committee on audit and control of the contingent expenses of the Senate or the House of Representatives, or enrolled bills in either house, or the joint committee on printing? I'm speaking of the vital committees. The hum-dinger of the entire outfit is the representatives' rules committee. The senate has a rules committee, too, but the senate's rules are not as strict as those in the lower chamber. The senatorial body can overrule its rules committee quite easily. Consequently it isn't so dictatorial. It can't be. The House committee, however, decides whether or not proposed pieces of legislation can be considered at all. By refusing to give a bill right-of-way it usually can prevent it from being so much as discussed, let alone being voted on. This committee likewise can be overruled by enough members of the whole house, but it's a mighty difficult, long-drawn-out process.

In short, it's recognized that the representatives virtually are bossed by a trivium consisting of the speaker, the majority leader and the rules committee chairman.

Until the last congressional election John O'Connor of New York City was chairman. He was (and is) an anti-New Dealer and tied up New Deal policies in the worst possible way. That's why the New Deal was so determined to purge him—and succeeded in doing it. By right of seniority (which doesn't necessarily prevail, but almost invariably does) Adolph J. Sabath of Chicago graduated into the chairmanship. He's a loyal New Dealer, so everything is lovely—from the New Dealers' standpoint.

Demand Is Heavy

There are a dozen or fifteen chairmanships in each house in the capitol. Believe me, members covet them. Seniority gravitates them into such positions.

If a lawmaker is beaten at the polls, he may be re-elected later, but he's lost his seniority status. For example, the late Senator James Couzens of Michigan, elected a Republican, was invited to run again as a Democrat. As a Democrat, he thought he might win, but if he did, he said, he'd come in as a junior Democrat, rather than as senior committee Republican. He'd rather drop out altogether, he told me. He said he was a dandy committeeman but a poor debater in an open forum.

Sports Parade

By HENRY MCLEMORE

NEW YORK (UP)—If I were a carpenter, and out of work, I would go to the Yankee Stadium and apply for the job of building the extra bleachers for the 1939 world series.

Because the Yankees are in. The National League may have a heluva time determining the victim to be sacrificed in late September, but there is no doubt in the American League. The fight is strictly confined to second place. It may be the Red Sox, it may be Detroit, or it may be the irrepressible Cleveland, but first place belongs to the Yankees.

They proved that in their opener. Faced by the Red Sox, the only club that is given a chance to beat them, the Yankees won 2 to 0. It was a quiet, easy victory. With Rufus (Red) Ruffing doing the pitching (and try and name me someone who can do it better than the three-toed man from Illinois) the Yankees just breezed. Funny thing about the Yankees—they win as they have to. If their pitching is bad, they take a firmer grip on their bats and slug their way through. If their pitching is good they sort of relax, and get just enough base knocks to win. Look up their scores of last year. They'll average something like 10 to 8 or 4 to 2. The Yankees are obliging. They'll either hit with you or pitch with you. They don't care, just so they win.

To say that any club will bother them is ridiculous. To bet that any team will is to play the narrow percentage that bubonic plague will hit the champions, or that three or four of their men will be removed from combat by accident. Man for man no team in the majors belongs on the same field with the Yankees.

Take the life line out of the team—that axis that starts with the catcher and ends with the center-fielder. All the Yankees have in that shot through the middle is Bill Dickey, Red Ruffing, Joe Gordon, and Joe DiMaggio. In short, the best catcher, the best pitcher, the best second baseman, and the best outfielder. I'll even go farther than that.

Senator 27 Years

that in describing DiMaggio. He is the best man in baseball today. He made two catches that no other outfielder in the league could have made. And—this is important—he made them look easy. The first one was a shoestring catch, and Joe took it on the dead run, without a stumble or a play to the crowd. The other was a long fly, on an arc over his head. He brought it down with the east of a union leaguer looking at his watch.

Dickey was off to a bad start. All he could do was to get all there was out of Ruffing, and blast a home run and a double. The best that Ruffing could do, with a chill wind whipping about, was to shut out the Sox.

Report on Gehrig: He looked pretty bad. True, he took the same old cut at the ball at bat, but in the field he was slower than almost any man you ever saw. The long grind has got him. He'll stay on first, however, as long as the Yankees can win with him. The minute they start losing with him he'll be replaced by Henrich. My guess is that he will be on first all year, because the Yankees are good enough to carry him along. After all, they carried him most of last year. It

LAS VEGAS TELLS STORY OF DEAD MAN IN CARD GAME

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—In this town which calls itself "the last frontier," the story was told of the poker game that was played with a dead man sitting at the table.

Fred Martens, better known as "Fritz the Rooster," was sitting in a poker game with a few old timers. After a run of bad luck he was drawing to a possible straight, when he collapsed and died of a heart attack.

"Call a doc," a fellow player called to the gambling house proprietor. The game went on, and several pots were won and lost while the dead man sat with them at the table. Finally a doctor arrived, and there was a slight interruption while the table was moved so the body could be removed. Then the game continued.

wasn't until late in the season, when the flag was won, that Lou hit enough to bring his average up around the .300 class.

Anyway, the Yanks are in, and if you bet on them in the future book go right ahead and spend your profit. They are in the same class with death and taxes when it comes to sure things.

Quadrille Has Trip To Fair

excursionists were met by representatives of the world's fair commission and the Treasure Island band and escorted to the Sacramento-Tahoe Region building where there was a short reception.

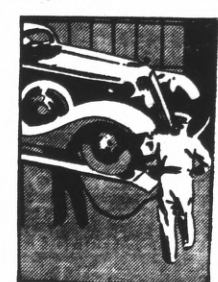

From eight-thirty until nine o'clock in the evening, the Pioneer Quadrille Club gave an exhibition dance in the main rotunda of the California building with an exceptionally large and appreciative audience.

Throughout the day motion pictures and newspaper publicity pictures were taken of the group and a portion of the boat race was broadcast on a national network.

The audience appeared so appreciative of the old-time dances as presented by the Pioneer Quadrille Club that the management of the fair urged them to return again some time before the fair ends.

A number of those who made the trip returned Saturday night to Sacramento on the Delta Queen, which sailed from Treasure Island at 11 o'clock. Others remained over Sunday to spend the day at the fair.

Labor Bills Keep Rural Assemblymen On Alert

take the floor in opposition. Some of these attorney legislators have told us of certain judges in their district whom they feel are biased and they desire such a law to protect themselves. However, the law now allows them ample protection. The new law would make it easier to disqualify a judge.

I am glad to say here that the attorney legislators we have talked to have no such feeling against any of the superior judges of the Sixth District.

Under a motion to reconsider, those of us who represent the rural area will endeavor this week to have the bill amended so that it will not affect counties having two or less judges.

A labor bill introduced by a Los Angeles assemblyman which would affect the smaller communities because of certain labor hour restrictions was amended in the assembly by the representatives of the rural counties with the result that the author of the bill, unable to recognize his own bill because of the numerous amendments, amended his own bill by taking out the hour clause and his bill was passed without any objectionable features as far as the smaller cities and counties were concerned. Other bills of this nature are coming up and it will take considerable effort on the part of the rural representatives to prevent their passage. It is legislation such as this which makes it necessary for the rural representatives in the lower house, who are in the minority, to keep on their toes to see that the objectionable features are eliminated.

Four bills introduced by the writer passed the lower house the past week. One of them would give to paid constables the right to have their automobiles declared emergency vehicles, allowing them a red light and a siren to be used in the case of emergencies. The bill, however, does not give to them any exemption in case of an accident. Two other bills were amendments to the penal code relating to the payment of fines, while the fourth was a bill relating to the right of privacy in advertising matters. These bills now go to the various senate committees for further hearing.

The fish and game committee of the lower house, of which our assemblyman is a member, has devoted a total of almost eight hours to hearing arguments favoring and opposing four alien fishing bills. The hearings have developed some interesting features, including the fact that the A. F. of L. opposes the bill and the C. I. O. favors the bill. On the other hand testimony has been given that the United States Navy is interested in seeing such a bill pass and if the writer receives the information along this line he has asked for direct from Washington, we will vote for such a bill. Up to the present time we have opposed such a bill on the grounds that the bill as proposed was more or less a direct slap against one nation whose citizens cannot become citizens of our country and many of whom have American born children who are American citizens. Up to now we have felt that the spy angle and the flag waving was more or less propaganda to urge the passage of such legislation. However, if we are informed direct from Washington that the navy desires such a bill, we will vote for it.

Similar alien fish bills have been introduced at previous sessions of the legislature and prior to this year they have been known as "cinch bills."

Your legislators in the lower house worked until midnight last Friday attempting to clear up the calendar which now has some four hundred bills listed for consideration. The budget bill, which was last week temporarily sidetracked, may come up before the lower house this week. The question now is whether we are going to do a good job on the budget in the lower house or send it over to the senate, with 41 votes, and let them take the full responsibility. The writer feels that in taking the $73,000,000 relief item, as well as two other proposed appropriation items, the compulsory health insurance and a half million dollars for a new type of hospital for mildly insane persons, which is still in the experimental stage, out of the budget, if we do nothing more we of the lower house have done our part in trying to assist the taxpayer. And just in case you do not know it, it has been estimated that the compulsory health insurance program would cost the employers and the employees of the state about $80,-

Ski Shelter Plans Told

erection of a ski tow, representing an investment of about $10,000, which will operate from the site of the ski shelter to the top of the ridge immediately east of Lover's Leap. Weber did not elaborate upon the nature of this development but indicated that private capital is interested.

The proposed ski tow will be 3,000 feet long with a vertical rise of between 800 and 900 feet, it was said.

Mr. Weber, a past president of the club, presided as master of ceremonies at the dinner and called upon Bill Berry and Phil English to sing and play the club song.

The toastmaster expressed regret that George Gustavson, national cross country champion and a member of the club, was not present. Gustavson, he indicated, is more confident as a skier than he is as a public speaker.

Albert Martin, Jr., one of the younger members of the club, who placed second in every jumping event in which he entered during the past season, was given recognition as was Walton Honn, Jr., another of the younger members of the club, who this year is Captain of the Sacramento Junior College Ski

Team, winners of the state junior college ski championship.

Mr. Weber then reviewed briefly the club's history, stressing the club's hopes for having the highway kept open into the snow sports area throughout the winter, its efforts to obtain a ski shelter, and the development of snow sports in the county under the club's sponsorship.

He then called upon Robert Carpenter, president of the club for the past season, who has just been re-elected to a second term, who sketched some of the highlights of the winter sports year and declared the club's intention vigorously to press the cause of winter sports expansion in this county.

Ogden Hook, president of the chamber of commerce, told of the interest of the organization in winter sports and declared that the erection of the ski shelter and other development contemplated will provide accommodations which should attract great numbers of winter sports fans to the area.

Mr. Weber then presented the ski shelter announcement reported above and declared that this is the first time that the government has taken part in a development of this nature.

Mr. Corker, who drew the plans, was introduced and spoke briefly as did Bert Parsons, banquet committee chairman and Leon Thomas, Secretary for the past year.

Officers for the new year, President Carpenter, Bert Parsons, vice-president; Hazel Davey, secretary; Don Goodrich, treasurer; and Floyd Poole, chief of the hill, all were introduced.

The chairman announced that State Senator Pierovich and Assemblyman A. G. Thurman had been invited to the dinner and had replied expressing their regrets they would be unable to attend. On behalf of Swift Berry, who was called out of town suddenly, Bill Berry expressed his father's interest in the ski club and offered the whole-hearted co-operation.

Like interest was expressed by C. G. Price, of the California Door Company, who offered the co-operation of that organization to the club.

Among the several others who were called upon by the toastmaster and who spoke briefly were Curtis M. Rocca, Echo Lakes resort owner; Harvey Lyon, a member of the banquet committee; Lloyd Cannon, chairman of the community committee which raised funds sending George Gustavson to the tournament where he won the national championship; John A. Raffetto, Jr., and A. H. Murray, members of the same committee; and Don Goodrich, Allen Otto, Max Baer; Stanley Morris, a member of the club and also a member of the Sacramento Junior College ski team; Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and representatives of the local press.

Team, winners of the state junior college ski championship.

BEER helps even those who do not drink it! To the tune of a million dollars a day nation-wide, beer tax revenue reaches back into every community, to help pay for relief, for public works, for education... and to lift a burden that would otherwise rest directly on the taxpayers.

To this, add a million new jobs made by beer. And a 100 million dollar farm market.
